Dangerous Felt Hats

"Everybody knowshow terribly explosive nitro-glycerine is under concussion," said a dealer in oil well supplies from Bradford, Pa, but few know the lasting properties of the explosive, and how next to impossible it is to destroy ite deadly qualities. In manufac-turing nitro-glycerine one of the processes to to etrain it through felt, usually through the crowns of old felt hate, they having been found not only the most convenient and effective for the purpose, but also prefer-handling of it afterward.

"At one of the factories in the northern oil field once an employee resolved to test the life of nitro-glycerine, and he took a hat crown that had been used as a strainer, washed it thoroughly, and then put it through a course of treatment with aikalis. He laid the felt away on a shelf out of the reach and knowledge of any one else in the factory. It lay there two years, and one day the man happened to think of it and

day the men happened to think of it and took it down

"Workers about nitro-glycerine are notoriously reckiess, but the most careful and timid man would scarcely have had any fear of this two-year-old strainer, especially after the treatment it had received. The workman had no idea that there could possibly remain in the felt the slightest suspicion of danger, and to show that the stuff had been annihilated he put the folt on the iron arm of the timer's bench, where the cans for holding the explosive are soldered, and struck it with a hammer. The result was a surprise to that factory. An explosion followed that broke both arms of the workman, stunned three other men, hurled the heavy iron arm through a two-foot wall, and wrecked the tinning shop.

"Nitro-glycerine can't be annihilated, and from the careless manner in which it has been handled ever since it came in use in the oil regions it is a wonder that there is a town standing in the whole field."

A REVOLVER IN HIS PULPIT.—Rev. J. M. Crabtree, pastor of the Alton Church in Marshall county, Kentucky, swore out a warrant last Sunday for Hugh Coker, charg ing him with disturbing meeting. Joe Green and his son attended the trial. The elder Greer had been told that the preacher also intended to swear out a warrant for the arrest of his son. On charging Mr. Crabtree with it a scuffl; ensued, during which Mr. Crabtree was knocked down, choked, and otherwise badly handled. That same night, however, he appeared in the pulpit, armed with a revolver, and opened the services as usual. The Greers were on the outside, and began to bombard the church, some of the missiles passing through the window and hitting the clergyman. He thereupon drew his revolver and fired twice at the Greers

but missed them.

The congregation fied panic stricken from the church and with them went the pastor. Two warrants were sworn out for Mr. Crab tree's arrest, but when the constable went to serve them the preacher could not be Greer is a tough character. He has figured in many desperate fights and served one term in the penitentiary.

CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA .- The following cure for diphtheria was published several years ago in the N. Y. Tribune. A gentleman in this city, who, a short time ago, lost two children from the dread disease, tried this remedy on the third one, and it got well:

Thoroughly swab the back of the mouth and the throat with table salt 2 drams, black pepper 1 dram, golden seal 1 dram, nitrate of potash 1 dram, alum 1 dram, pulverize together and put in a tea cup, which half fill with boiling water. Stir well and fill up with good vinegar. Use every half hour, then one, two and four hours apart, as recovery progresses. The patient may swallow a little each time. Apply one ounce each of spirits of turpentine, sweet oil and agus smmonia, m'xed, to the whole of the outside of the throat and to the breast bone every four hours, keeping flannel on the parts.

FOUND HEE SONS .- The widow of Dr. George C. Cafe has just returned to Concord, N. C., with her two sons, aged ten and eight years, who were taken from her by their father six years ago, and whom she had all that time been trying to trace. The oldest boy, John. was found in the family of a drayman at Johnson City, Tenn. Mrs. Cafe did not recognize him at first. The other boy, Kronbeim, was found in a cave twenty-eight miles from Johnson City. He at first refused to leave it, but finally his mother persuaded him to do so. Neither boy wished to return. They had entirely forgoiten her, and neither yet calls her mother. Dr. Cafe was found dead in the road near Concord six weeks ago. He had left the children in Tennessee.
